

→ BBC White City

Historically London has often been paved using UK two colour sandstone, bringing warmth and colour to the city. This type of paving is still fully embraced by Borough Councils including Westminster, Kensington and Chelsea, Richmond and Hammersmith and Fulham to name but a few. With UK supplies of this type of sandstone at an all time low London has had to look to imported material to ensure demand is met by supply.

BBS Granite Concepts Ltd have been at the forefront of sourcing these materials, and can boast a range of imported sandstones which include our buff/grey two colour sandstone which is being laid throughout London as an alternative to the UK supplies. This economically viable and aesthetically pleasing alternative carries a technical specification in line with the UK materials and is held in stock at our UK depots.

With selected areas around the Westgate Shopping Centre, the new Wood Lane tube station and the frontage to the BBC studios, our two colour sandstone has been the material of choice to complement the existing UK sandstone previously supplied.

